We are pleased that with the direction and support of our Delegates at the 74th Quadrennial Convention, the GMP emerged financially secure, independent and capable of building on our unexcelled record of service to our members.

During the Convention, which we celebrated 170 years as a Labor Union, the Delegates had the opportunity to debate and approve resolutions that give focus to our goals and help us better serve our membership as we charted a course for the next four years. This course will keep our great historic and productive union strong and responsive to the needs of its members. A number of resolutions were considered and approved which addressed protecting workers’ rights and the programs that benefit the majority of working families. The Delegates also approved an amendment to strengthen the strike fund.

The Delegates had the responsibility to consider and approve a dues increase. As I told the Delegates and want to tell each and every one of you, we did not ask for more than we absolutely require. And with your continued direction and support, the GMP will remain a vibrant, independent Union devoted to the betterment of its members and its families.

During the Convention we also focused on the 2012 National and State elections. In addition to the state battles, the entire U.S. House of Representatives, 33 Senators and President Obama are up for re-election. I feel certain that we are prepared to recreate political balance by electing representatives that are committed to fighting for working families, and for America’s middle class.

Following a video address by President Obama the Delegates unanimously endorsed President Obama in his bid for re-election as President of the United States of America. President Obama has placed his faith in America’s working men and women to lead our country to economic recovery and deserves the support of America’s working families in the 2012 election. We will support the efforts to re-elect President Obama at all levels of the organization and will work to get government working again for all of the citizens of the United States of America.

To all of those who worked so hard to make the Convention a success, I offer my sincere thanks. International Officers, Staff and Convention Delegates worked hard to provide a clear direction for our future over the next four years and beyond. On behalf of the elected officers, I thank all of you for your confidence and support.

Brothers and Sisters, I am honored to be able to work with our Executive Board, our staff, our local leaders and with our members in every sector of our union in the U.S. and Canada. As we go forward, we must be united, continuing to work together for the betterment of our members and their families – for all working families – for America’s middle class. Because we know that if we want it, we’ve got to work for it. Never forget that our strength, our lifeblood is our unity. Thank you for being courageous, principled, and strong leaders in our Union. I am proud to stand with you today, tomorrow and in the future.
The 74th Quadrennial Convention was called to order on Monday, August 6th at 10:00 a.m. by International Secretary-Treasurer Randy J. Gould, who welcomed the delegation, guests, speakers and International Staff in three languages. Rev. Father Clete Kiley, UNITEHERE delivered an invocation and blessed the Brothers and Sisters of the Convention, calling for strength and unity within the labor movement which is facing such difficult times.

Secretary Treasurer Gould then had the honor and privilege of introducing International President Bruce R. Smith. President Smith began by welcoming everyone to the Convention and reflecting upon the history of one of North America’s oldest Labor Unions.

“This is our 74th Quadrennial Convention. But even more significant, this is our 170th anniversary as a labor union. Our roots date back to 1842 with the first glass bottle blowers Local in New Jersey, and the former Iron Molders in 1859 and 1890 with the Brotherhood of Operative Potters. We hold the distinction of being one of the oldest Labor Unions in North America.

And as Union members, we have the responsibility to understand our history so that we may be better prepared for the future. It’s important to recognize those who came before us and who have made considerable sacrifices to lay the groundwork for the lifestyle and opportunities that we enjoy today. These individuals, from all levels of this International Union, fought for the rights of workers they represented and improved their conditions and the conditions of those who have followed.

During this Convention, we are honoring our past and preparing for the future. We are here to consider what we have achieved, what we have overcome, and what we have yet to confront. Most importantly, we’re here to chart our course for the future. I ask that you respect the past, but keep your eyes on the future.”

President Smith closed his remarks by calling on the Delegates to never forget that our strength—our lifeblood—is our unity. He thanked the Delegates for being courageous, principled and strong leaders.

The 74th Quadrennial Convention was attended by 400 delegates, officers, staff and guest representing over 150 Local Unions in the United States and Canada. During the afternoon session the Honorable Carolyn Goodman, Mayor of Las Vegas took time from her busy schedule to welcome the GMP International Union to the City of Las Vegas. The delegation also heard a passionate speech from Nevada AFL-CIO Secretary Treasurer, Danny Thompson. “Let me tell you something today, Brothers and Sisters, this election is the most important election of your life. If you don’t believe what went on in Wisconsin and Ohio isn’t part of a plan in this state, bills introduced to end collective bargaining and do away with the eight-hour day . . . proposals that came to us from the Republicans . . . everything that’s going on in Wisconsin and Ohio and those other places is going on here.”

Day two brought guest speakers and committee reports. United Steel Workers President, Leo Gerard addressed the Convention with great passion and expressed his support of the GMP’s brothers and sisters.
as we are all in this fight together. “...let me say that Bruce is right about the things that we need to work together on in the glass industry, in the foundry industry, in the molding industry. We’re facing global competition and we’re facing global companies.” President Gerard spoke about the upcoming elections, saying, “This is an election where there’s a pivotal point where we’re going to be asked as people that care about the future to choose. Americans are going to be asked to choose one direction or the other. They’re going to be asked to go in the direction that President Obama’s been trying to take us or they’re going to be asked to go in the direction that Mitt Romney and his rich billionaire friends are trying to take us.” President Gerard closed to a standing ovation.

The Convention body then heard from Richard Trumka, President of the AFL-CIO, who congratulated the GMP on its recent organizing campaign in Etowah, and speaking directly to the two guests from that location in attendance, “…let me congratulate the workers at Johns Manville in Etowah, Tennessee, for voting to join the Glass Molders and for winning a first contract.” President Trumka spoke with passion about “…the attacks on our rights, the attacks on public employees and private employees and on organizing drives in the workplaces, those attacks are not going to destroy us. They’re going to make us stronger and tougher and more resourceful, they’ll make us more creative and more resilient. You see, what the corporate CEOs and the right wing don’t understand is, we’re not going away. They can’t force us to go away. We’ll stay and fight because this is our country and it is time that we took it back.”

The delegation also had the privilege of hearing Hassan Yussuf, Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Labour Congress, speak about the challenges that face Canadian Labour. He emphasised that the United States and Canada share the largest borders in the world and we must unite together to protect each and every one of our Brothers and Sisters.

The Law Committee presented multiple resolutions, including the adopted resolutions to strengthen the security fund and to increase the International dues by eight dollars.

The Political Action Committee presented nine resolutions and a video address from President Obama. Senator Sherrod Brown of Ohio also sent a video address that was well received by the delegates. The Delegates adopted all resolutions including a resolution to support the re-election of President Barack Obama. The Organizing Committee committed to organize the unorganized and had the privilege and honor to present the newest members of the GMP with their charter and we are PROUD to welcome Local 232, Johns Manville of Etowah, Tennessee to the GMP family.

On day three, Vanessa Martin of Union Privilege informed the delegation of the many union services and programs available to GMP members. For a complete listing of savings and discounts please visit www.union-plus.org. The delegation was also honored to welcome back former GMP Director of Communications Richard Kline who currently is the President of the Union Label and Service Trades Department of the AFL-CIO. Richard expressed to the delegation the importance of buying union and informed the delegation of the information offered at the Union Label website. (www.unionlabel.org)
The nomination of the GMP International officers was conducted on Wednesday with all officers being elected by unanimous ballot. Congratulations to all! Day three also saw the nominations of fraternal delegates for the 2013 AFL-CIO Convention, 2014 Western Hemisphere Conference and the 2016 Western Hemisphere Conference.

Delegates that will represent the GMP International Union at the AFL-CIO Convention which will be held in Los Angeles, California September 8 – 12, 2013 are:

- Wanda Williams, Local Union 216
- Charles McIntyre, Local Union 17 and
- Donald Carter Jr., Local Union 177

Delegates elected to the 2014 Western Hemisphere Conference are:

- Sally Winterburn, Local Union 417
- Carlos Contreras, Local Union 17
- Victor Luce Jr., Local Union 132
- Rick Cicero, Local Union 58 and
- Henry William Blanchard, Local Union 63

For the 2016 Western Hemisphere Conference the representatives are:

- Jeremiah Simmons, Local Union 259
- Gary Smith II, Local Union 2
- Stephen Talbott, Local Union 17
- Mario Rivera, Local Union 141, and
- Josh Coleman, Local Union 96

On day four, Executive Director of the GMP Employers Retiree Trust, Marilyn Barnes explained the many benefits our participating GMP members receive. The trust offers a life insurance program, an indemnity program, a PPO option, a prescription drug program and a Nurtur Program. For additional information on eligibility and the programs available to contributing members, please contact the GMP Trust directly. www.gmptrust.com

Paula Peinovich, President of the National Labor College in Silver Springs, Maryland informed the delegation about the many degree options available. “From the perspective of the college, it’s scalable and affordable; and so online education is both a means, but it’s also an end, because the BLS, The Bureau of Labor Statistics, predicts that by 2014 – which is of course getting closer and closer – almost 70 percent of all jobs will require some kind of either work related training; 20 percent will require bachelor’s degree; and at least 9 percent will require an Associate Degree or higher. Education is becoming more and more important in the workforce and actually in finding and creating and preparing workers of all genres to have good jobs.”

On day five we were very honored to have Secretary of Labor, Hilda Solis address the Convention. Secretary Solis spoke on many topics of interest and concern to organized labor and the upcoming Presidential Election. Secretary Solis expressed her personal connection to Labor, “I just want to tell you how proud I am and how happy I am to be here, and it does my heart real good to know that you all are fighting every single day for the things that we all believe in for fair wages, for safer workplaces, and to go beyond what people think about who we are, because we’ve been mislabeled. I think people don’t quite understand what the Union household and membership is about.” Secretary Solis encouraged the delegation and our entire GMP membership to be proud of our jobs, to be proud that we together make America stronger.

“I think most people in America maybe don’t quite understand what GMP stands for, and what you all do. But your tradition of crafting and building and delivering products that make life easy for so many Americans and for people around... this country I think is lost. It’s lost sometimes over the thought that people think they can get things so quickly done.

I think sometimes we have to step back and take a moment and share, share what it is that we do. And I know some of you, just like my parents were, they’re not — they’re not good about talking about what they do sometimes, unless they’re in the comfort of their home or with their friends.

But you know what, when you’re under attack, and people are saying things about your profession or about what you’re doing, and are misrepresenting you, then you have an obligation to stand up. You have an obligation to tell them exactly what you’ve done and the sacrifices you have made to help this country and your family, because everything you’ve done, you have helped to make our country stronger.”

As President Smith brought the convention to a close many members of the delegation spoke of the GMP being a family and the sense of pride they have to say they are a member of the GMP.

The 75th Quadrennial Convention of the GMP International Union will be held in 2016.

“For 170 years, the men and women in this hall and those who have gone before us have been fighting the good fight, standing in solidarity. We have overcome so much already. But the struggle for justice goes on, and here and now you come down upon us to fire us up again. There can be no sitting on the sidelines these days.” — KILEY

This election year, what’s at stake are basic values. Will we bow to the top 1%? Or will we honor the simple idea that made America great and will make America great again – respect for hard work and the contributions of every person.

Good jobs and a fair economy are the top issues on voter’s minds, and working family voters will be a critical voting bloc. The labor movement – America’s original working class social network – is mobilizing working people to come together in registering and getting out the vote for candidates that support working families.

At first glance the Republicans cries for less government may seem appealing, but on close examination “less government” has translated into the erosion of voter rights; the right of workers to organize; women’s right to decide about their bodies; the right to health care and healthcare choices; immigrant rights; marital partner and partner choice rights.

The Republicans’ call for less government is really a veiled attempt to diminish the personal liberties for which our forbearers fought and died. That is why we ask you to cast your vote on November 6 for the democratic principles that have made this country great.

But your vote means more than that, because the economy is important. Your vote for President Obama is a vote for a fairer tax structure and continued economic recovery. We all know the GOP wants to continue tax breaks for the rich that were created under the younger Bush. Under that structure, the $250 million a year Romney “earns” is taxed at 15%. Is that fair? Has lowering taxes on the rich translates into the rich creating more job? Not at all – it has just made the rich richer while slamming the middle class.

Your vote for President Obama is a vote to continue his programs for Job creation; Healthcare reform; Wall street reform; Enhanced educational benefits; Continued economic recovery; Honoring and respecting veterans; Strengthening women’s right to equal pay and helping families withstand economic stress; A fair immigration policy; Securing Social Security.

How you vote is your own personal decision, but after researching the records, the GMP and the AFL-CIO believe President Obama and the Democratic Party have a proven record of fighting for working families. Please do your part by voting – and mobilizing others to vote – for President Obama and the Democratic Senators and Representatives on November 6.

Cast your vote for President Obama to preserve your personal freedoms. Cast your vote for fairness, progress and the American way.

For the first time in ECR International’s 85 year history, its Utica, NY manufacturing facility achieved two years of operation without a lost time incident. This safety milestone was achieved through an aggressive Environmental Health and Safety (EH&S) program focused on eliminating safety risks in their processes, products and services. Expanding employee safety awareness and continually improving the safety culture within the company has been fundamental in the program’s success. “ECR’s employees have taken safety to a new level and have embraced the importance of what a safe work environment means to them, their co-workers, and their families” said Pat Morrocco, Vice President of Operations and executive lead of the EH&S program for the company. The safety of employees and visitors remains a top priority for ECR, and its continuous record without a lost time incident is testament of the employees’ commitment toward improving safety within the company. ECR congratulates all its employees and business associates for achieving this very important milestone.

ECR International manufactures boilers, furnaces, air conditioning and controls under these fine brands: Argo, Dunkirk, EMI, Olsen, Pennco, RetroAire and Utica. The company is headquartered in Utica with additional manufacturing facility in Dunkirk, NY. Congratulations to all the members of Local Union 368 in achieving such a milestone.
